Dear Parent/Carer,

Following letters sent earlier this week regarding social media posts regarding School Wars across London. I wanted to provide you with a suitable update and we appreciate this has caused some concerns.

All Headteachers have been informed that in order to provide reassurance locally police are patrolling areas around schools this afternoon.

We have not been provided with any evidence of planned incidents.

Students have been reminded to go straight home in the normal way and not hang around by school or areas on route. This is part of our daily expectations and in line with our school policy.

If you collect or are collecting your child, they can remain in school till you arrive as normal. As we do each day myself and colleagues will be at the gates and local area after school.

We appreciate these social media posts have created anxiety in a number of London boroughs. As a school we have followed all advice given by the LA and local police.

We thank you for your understanding and support.

Yours sincerely

Mr N. Langham
Headteacher
